Graphic of the week

You may have noticed a new idea we're trying out in the email this week: a Graphic of the Week (GotW, as I like to think of it). Last bit of capitalisation optional.

What are your thoughts - on this week's in particular, and on the concept in general? Would be great to hear your thoughts, and any ideas of what you might like to see here!

(For ref, here's this week's graphic:)

It's a great idea @jamie_finimize! There are many things to show through a graphic. It would be interesting to relate the graphic of the week to a current event / article as you did with this one. I'm hoping in a couple of weeks to see the graphic of the day!

We'll test it out weekly and see what we can do 😉

Love it. Please work hard to keep it simple and understandable on small screens. The share of cash chart is well done.

I love it! I'd also like a 'Map of the week' 🙂

What in particular would you want to see featured on the 'map of the week'?

Well maps are just a particular kind of chart, in a way. I'd like to see something related to current events/article as stated by Matias above about charts. For example this first lovely chart gave us and idea of how much tech titans share of cash is overseas, a map could have given a hint about where that cash is. Do I make sense?

Regards the chart- excellent idea! One add, and realize this add could be difficult to decide - a bit more detail to explain the chart - again realize that simplicity has great value - a good, clean graphic perfectly exemplified "one good picture is worth a thousand words". Keep up the great job!! And concur on maps, same idea, same reasoning. Thanks!!!

I'm a datavizophile so love the concept. This week's overseas cash chart is well done but would love to see more of the "so what?" I'm thinking how you could tie it to the US tax reform bill that would make it easier for companies to repatriate their overseas cash and maybe an insight about what the tech community is saying about that. Great job and please keep the CotW coming!

I like it! Somehow make it sharable with a link that gives me credit for new subscribers when I share it 🙂
